SENATE MEASURE INCREASES POWER OF HIGHWAY BOARD

Probers Reported as Favoring Abandonment of Elbert Quarry and Business Administration of

First fruits of the light shed on the situation in the state highway department by the recently concluded investigation were seen by onlookers Monday in the passage by the senate of a highway department reorganization bill by the vote of 35 to 0.

At the same time it was unofficially reported that the report of the senate highway investigation committee—work on which was begun Thursday night—will recommend that the highway board be given full authority and that the highway engineer be stripped of his authority. The committee Monday night decided to withhold the report from publication for several days, it was also learned.

Among recommendations of the committee it is understood will be one that the Elbert county stone quarry be disposed of and that unless the cafeteria at East Point can be run on a paying basis, it be disposed of.

There is some disposition on the part of members of the committee to criticise the use of expensive automobiles by the department and also the practice of salary advances, it is reported. It is understood that members of the committee are inclined to accept the view that John N. Holder, chief of the highway department,

The highway reorganization measure passed Monday is a committee substitute for senate bill No. 73. It carries out in its provisions recommendations made by Chairman John N. Holder, on the witness stand at the investigation, that all control of the department should be lodged in the board. The measure provides that the "department" shall consist of the board itself and such other officials, including the chief engineer, the board

The measure also would give the board full authority in the hiring and firing of all officials and employees of the department, including the chief engineer.

Chairman John N. Holder, closing his testimony before the senate investigating committee, was asked where, in his opinion, the full control of the department should be lodged and his recommendations were in the highway board, and when it is not in session, in the chairman. He expressed the opinion that divided authority could only result in divided

HOME OF KENTUCKY JUDGE IS BOMBED

Ashland, Ky., August 17.—(AP)—"Elliot Hall," the big brick home of Judge W. H. Flannery, at Catlettsburg, was partially wrecked early today by an explosion, supposed to be of dynamite. The charge tore away the front porch and broke all the windows in it and adjoining houses. Eight persons asleep in the home were tossed from their beds but were not injured. Police said the explosion was an act of a lawless element, supposedly angered by Judge Flannery's vigorous enforcement of the prohibition laws. Bloodhounds failed to pick up a trail, as hundreds of persons were attracted to the scene before the dogs arrived. In the home were Judge Flannery and his wife, Mrs. Mary Elliott Flannery, former member of the state legislature and now the democratic nominee; Mr. and Mrs. Davis Howerton, relatives; Davis Howerton, Jr.; Miss Amada Elliott, sister of Mrs. Flannery, and the maid. All were asleep in rear rooms, which were not damaged. Judge Flannery, sitting on the police court bench, has dealt out fines and sentences liberally for some time to all convicted of violation of the prohibition law. This was the only clue which the police could find as a motive for the attempted crime. The blast jarred the entire street and the tinkle of broken glass for a square followed the explosion. The political prominence of the inmates drew hundreds of curious to the scene today.

COOLIDGE EXPECTS AGREEMENT TODAY

probably will get similar concessions. It was for this reason that the administration placed so much importance upon this settlement. May Return Wednesday. President Coolidge had been planning to return to the summer white house at Swampscott Tuesday, but in view of the interruption of his visit, he may not start until Wednesday. After he returns, it is generally believed he will end his vacation and return to Washington within a week or ten days. After eight weeks' rest, he desires to get as near as possible to the anthracite situation, the other debt negotiations and the plans for tax reduction.

FUNDING AGREEMENT CAN BE CONCLUDED TODAY.

Washington, August 17.—Completion of a funding agreement for the Belgian debt to the United States at the meeting of the two commissioners here Tuesday is regarded as possible. Negotiations here last week proceeded to such a stage that if the final points of difference were cleared up by the conference at Plymouth between President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon and Senator Smoot, the final agreement could be completed at the scheduled meeting Tuesday afternoon, as regards technical details, it was said at the treasury Monday. Treasury officials, however, would not predict that such would be the case, saying that no forecast could be made until it had been learned just what was decided at the Plymouth conference. While declining to comment on the dispatches from Plymouth, they were very optimistic over the reports. The Belgian commission has booked passages for its return to Belgium for Saturday, but this was done when they arrived here, it was explained at the treasury.

High commendation of the Belgian commissioners as being "understanding men" was voiced by one high treasury official. He said there had been very little dispute during the negotiations here last week.

HOPE OF FUNDING DEBT OF ITALIANS REVIVED.

Washington, August 17.—Hope for funding of the Italian war debt to the United States, totaling approximately two billion dollars, was revived Monday with assurances from Finance Minister Mario Alberti that he would exert his best efforts toward a settlement. This assurance, in a message to Acting Secretary of the Treasury Winston, was the first word from the Italian government since the negotiations here were interrupted several weeks ago. The Italians were due to return this month to resume negotiations. Alberti said nothing in his message of a resumption of negotiations.

He notified Winston that he had been appointed head of the special office, recently created to coordinate work of both the Italian foreign office and the treasury in regard to interrelated debts. In this capacity, he assured Winston that his "best efforts will be directed toward finding a way to secure a settlement of the difficult question which may prove satisfactory to both our countries, fully trusting that my attitude will be cordially reciprocated by you."

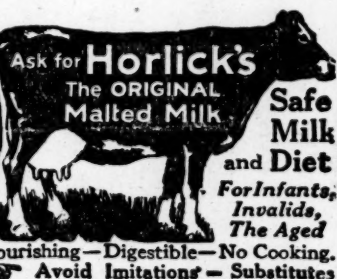

BELGIANS PLAN TO LEAVE SATURDAY.

Washington, August 17.—(AP)—Bearing out the optimistic feeling of President Coolidge that solution of the Belgian debt problem is near, it developed today that the Belgian negotiators had made reservations to sail from New York Saturday on the liner Majestic. The Belgians, as well as officials here involved in the negotiations, were reticent in regard to possible terms of the settlement. Even announcement of the intention of the negotiators to return home was withheld, but it was learned that the negotiators had been made before the departure of Secretary Mellon and Senator Smoot for Vermont to consult with the president.

was made payable to Rawlings. The insurance, with double indemnity features, ran to about $300,000. Rawlings has been prominent in business and agricultural affairs of Washington county for many years. Since the slaying of Tarbutton and since the arrest of Rawlings and Tanner, civil actions have been instituted in the courts, resulting in a receivership for all of Rawlings' properties. Some insurance companies have refused to settle others have paid. Associated with Rawlings as defense counsel are the firm of Evans & Evans, of Sandersville; Charles S. Claxton, of Wrightsville, and Parker New and Tom Hightower, of Dublin. The state is represented by Fred Kca, solicitor general, and Judge Luther Kant and C. T. Brinson, of Wrightsville.

siderable degree, and that it will be 2 or 3 o'clock Sunday morning before the session is adjourned sine die. The fight of the day in the senate was a contest over two district agricultural and mechanical schools, in which the matter was finally settled by supporters of the increased appropriation winning out in their effort to raise it to $25,000 for each of the ten institutions. An amendment by President J. Howard Ennis providing that the schools be located solely for maintenance and that they should be paid out only upon voucher to the governor showing they were to be used for maintenance was adopted. The amendment provides further that any excess shall revert to the general fund. Increase Is Voted. The maintenance fund of the North Georgia Agricultural college was increased from $30,000 to $45,000. While the 1928 appropriation by the house of $35,000 for the State Medical college was left unchanged, the 1927 fund was raised from $35,000 to $55,000. The annual appropriation for teaching hygiene and public health at the medical school was raised from $14,500 to $20,000. The maintenance fund of the negro A. & M. school at Forsyth was increased from $5,000 to $10,000. The two training school appropriations were increased, the girls' school fund being raised from $31,500 to $43,500, and the boys' from $27,000 to $34,000. The assistant secretary of the state institutions for which increased appropriations were asked, Senator Harrell, 12th, attacked the increase asked by the A. & M. schools, declaring that "this is a combination of schools to raid the treasury."

When the senate hesitated over raising the appropriation for the negro A. & M. school at Forsyth, Senator Parker, 2nd district, took the floor in behalf of the institution, urging the senate not to discriminate when they had so freely raised the appropriations of the white schools. Senator Neal, 13th, said that the negro exodus from Georgia had been caused by the fact that they were not given what they deserved, and that clashes between the races were due to ignorance on both sides. He urged the increase which was granted. Senator Parker said the school taught negroes useful occupations. "If they were teaching them Latin and Greek, it would vote against it, but they are teaching them to work. You know, there is an old saying that if you teach a negro 'hic, haec, hoc,' he soon forgets 'see, he, we, Buck,' he said. The public property committee of the senate Monday afternoon approved a house bill giving the governor authority to lease the Indian Springs property, and unfavorably reported a resolution by Senator Wilkinson to sell the state prison farm at Milledgeville and use the proceeds to erect a new farm elsewhere.

Following a public hearing, the classification tax bill as passed by the house was referred to a sub-committee by the constitutional amendments committee for consideration, with power to either draw a substitute bill or so amend the house bill that it will be acceptable to the senate committee. Sub-committee to Meet. The sub-committee, composed of Senators Harrell, chairman, Hendrix, Knox, Miller, Moye, Peebles and Perkins, will meet at 2 o'clock this afternoon to frame a report to the general committee. Governor Clifford Walker and Representative A. R. Lawton, Jr., of Chatham county, appeared before the general committee Monday afternoon in favor of the bill, while opposing the measure were Martin Ammons, of Marietta; W. P. Conley and Bryant Crane, of Augusta; Board of Commerce; R. S. Parker, general counsel of the Georgia Manufacturers' association, and Mr. Elkins, representing an industrial corporation. Senator J. C. Collier, 22nd, also opposed the measure in a short address. Senator Collier said the following list of enterprises contemplating Georgia investments which he said were delaying coming to Georgia because of pending legislation on the income and classification tax measures: Artificial silk mill, $3,500,000; Atlas powder company, $2,500,000; Utica steam cotton mill, 30,000 spindles; Johnson and Johnson, three mills of 50,000 spindles each.

The sub-committee, it is understood, may present a substitute or an amendment providing for the retention of the present ad valorem tax on real estate and other tangible property, and a classified tax on intangibles designed to bring such property out of hiding for taxation. The constitutional amendments committee reversed Senator Collier's constitutional amendment which would make legal his sales tax bill. DOPE AND INSANITY IS YOUTH'S DEFENSE. Graphic description of the shooting of Carter in his little restaurant were related by eyewitnesses, who declared Disse went about the act with calm and deliberate swiftness. They agreed that Carter did not see the man who shot him. The restaurant man was leaning over with his back to the door, they said, when the youth walked up and without warning fired two bullets into his side. Witnesses who were on the street when the youth departed the scene of the tragedy testified he stood on the sidewalk, reloaded his pistol and quietly entering the automobile, drove off.

ANDREWS TO HOLD "PEP" MEET TODAY

of much else beyond prohibition enforcement. Andrews Well Fitted. Andrews is peculiarly fitted for the role he will fill Tuesday. During the war he conducted courses in leadership, training would-be officers, as one of his associates at the treasury recalled. He also organized the military police in France, and was their director. He has a forceful, vigorous personality, and talks straight from the shoulder, in an attractive, winning way. He has won a wide following here since he assumed office. The contrast with the meeting of dry personnel here Tuesday which comes quickly to mind is the first budget meeting in 1921, when General Daves, an ex-soldier, startled serious-minded department heads and bureau chiefs by his dramatic plea for economy, stalking up down the stairs of the same interior building auditorium, swinging a broom. Will Outline Dry Program. Andrews will outline to the dry directors his program for enforcement under the reorganization, which goes into effect September 1. Some of his ideas, perhaps, will be startling.

He has indicated he means business. As yet, he has not disclosed his program.

Since all of the present personnel has been called to the meeting, it is assumed that all will be given some place in the new enforcement scheme. Some of them, it is expected, will be elevated to the new regional directorships of which there will be 24. Others will have assistants' places. The meeting will be closed to the public, and newspaper reporters will not be admitted. It is likely that a statement will be issued from the treasury afterward, publishing as much as Andrews regards necessary.

alongside her for the first mile or so, but the escort will have to be changed frequently, as she swims at a sprint pace and will doubtless draw away from the others in a short time. Miss Ederle's legs, arms, neck and face will be heavily greased, while she is making the trip from Boulogne to Cape Gris Nez. Odds were quoted at 6 to 1 against her, but she is the fastest man or woman who ever attempted the channel. Her success or failure depends on her ability to keep up the pace. Experts agree that Miss Ederle knows most about swimming than any person who ever appeared at Gris Nez, including even old Tom Burgess, who succeeded in swimming the channel in 1911 after many failures. Miss Ederle plans to ride away from the coast of France on the ebbing tide and to reach midchannel before a strong drift begins to work back toward France. Then she plans to ride the flood tide to Dover, a simple-sounding process, which will demand no little doing. During the swim Miss Ederle will use the crawl stroke, resting and taking chocolate and beef tea at intervals of an hour.

Fourteen pounds have been added to her compact figure since she started the United States by clipping a few seconds off the men's record from the Battery to Sandy Hook, New York, just before she sailed for Europe. Those added pounds are expected to help her stand the strain of the long swim. The accompanying tug will carry Miss Ederle's chaperon, her trainer and a group of men and women swimmers from various countries who will take turns swimming with the girl. Jane Sion and Lillian Harrison, both of whom were defeated recently by the tricky channel when they endeavored to swim across it, will be among the party. There will be newspaper reporters and photographers to record the progress of the swim.

INCOME TAX BILL SUPPORTERS SPLIT

and the committee made some slight amendments. The bill provides that beginning with 1929 the state ad valorem tax shall be limited to two and one-half mills, with the proviso that the legislature is authorized to lower or eliminate this tax, if revenues of the state justify. The measure also carries a proviso exempting household and kitchen furniture up to $250 from state taxation.

Will Push Own Bill.

Instead of supporting the measure agreed on Mr. Bussey will advocate passage of his own substitute which was adopted in the house recently and then failed of passage. This substitute provides that the state shall gradually retire from the ad valorem field of taxation. Its adoption by the house, instead of the committee substitute, is what split the income tax supporters. The bill drawn Monday night will be brought up at an early date, probably today. Representative Jones, of Meriwether, believes. He has a petition to the rules committee, signed by more than 100 members of the house, he stated, asking that the bill be put on the calendar.

the same question at the close of his testimony, expressed a similar opinion and stated that in his opinion the law already invested full authority in the board and the chairman and that he, as engineer, only held his authority on sufferance of the board which, he said, already had power to fire at any time it saw fit, with or without cause. Immediately upon transmission of the bill passed by the upper house Monday, the house, by unanimous consent, tabled its own highway department reorganization bill, in order to conserve time and, it is believed, that the senate bill will pass the house without any noticeable opposition.

The senate bill passed was introduced by Senator J. R. Hutcheson and left a dozen others. The special senate highway investigation committee met Monday night and started work on a report on the investigation of the highway department. It was announced that the report will not be released for publication until the latter part of the week.

Cut in Street Car Service Sought by Power Company; Power Conservation Urged Curtailment of Power May Be Necessary To Avert Shutdown on Ac- count of Drouth.

Petitioning the Georgia public service commission Monday for permission to reduce its Atlanta street car service by 11 per cent, the Georgia Railway and Power company declared that if the present drouth continues for six weeks its hydro-electric service will have to be abandoned if the present load on its transmission lines is continued.

An 11 per cent reduction in service would be scarcely noticeable, it was stated, as many lines would not be affected at all, while chances on others would be slight.

In addition to asking permission to curtail street car service in this city, the company announced it had appealed to municipalities to pump water only at night, had requested industrial plants to operate nights, Saturdays and Sundays, and had appealed to householders to be economical in the use of electricity.

Hearing on the petition was set for today. Preston S. Arkwright, president of the power company, pointed out that curtailment by 11 per cent of Atlanta's street car service would be scarcely noticeable to users of the trolley system and was a step taken only to avoid possible complete shutdown, which would be inevitable if drouth conditions continue.

Ordinarily in case of drouth conditions it is possible for the Georgia company to purchase power from other companies with which its transmission lines are linked, but these also have suffered from lack of rainfall on their watersheds and are not able to do more than take care of their own needs. Steam power only is being purchased now and this is practically negligible in view of the company's enormous needs.

President Arkwright said after the petition had been filed that the shortage of water to date has cost the company $1,250,000 in purchase of power from steam plants. In most instances, he declared, steam power has been sold for less than its cost to the company. Money also has been lost in the decrease consumption of power. Secondary customers have been cut off, it was stated.

Pointing to the drouth as being general, President Arkwright pointed out that street car service at Augusta has been decreased to such an extent that only one car is operated each hour over each line in that city.

Forsyth, Ga., August 17.—(Special.) Continued dry weather has played havoc with gardens and other crops in Monroe county. The cotton crop will be about the same size as last year, with a third more average. This is coming in earlier than ever known. It is too dry for the planting of fall gardens. The cotton crop of last year was around 4,500 bales. Hundreds of acres of corn burned up.

COUNCIL ACCEPTS OFFER OF COUNTY

the people a definite site to vote on at the referendum.

Two Years Before Moving.

In answer to statements that definite figures should be obtained on antiolated rentals from the present city hall building and sale of police and fire department headquarters. Mr. Russell stated that it will be at least two years before the city would be able to move offices from the present buildings.

Councilman Harry York announced that officials of the Massell Realty company have estimated that the present city hall at Marietta and Forsyth streets would net between $6,000,000 and $7,000,000 on a 99-year lease, and have indicated that they might later find a lessee on some such proposition. Income from that lease, he said, would be more than care for interest and sinking fund on the $2,000,000 worth of bonds.

On motion of Mr. York, council voted to authorize appointment of a committee of five to obtain bids from prospective lessees of the present city hall property, and from prospective purchasers of the present fire and police headquarters.

Under tentative plans, as outlined by Councilman C. G. Allen, father of the idea, and drawn by A. Ten Eyck Brown, prominent Atlanta architect, the structure would be a 20-story affair, and would include offices for all departments, in addition to housing fire and police departments, and providing space for city jails and court rooms.

The vote was 24 to 4 to accept the company's proposal. Aldermen Duvall, Moon, Ford, Carpenter and Smith, and Councilmen Wardlaw, Pennington, Ayen, Chosewood, White, Vaughn, Eickling, Morris, York, Callaway, Jenkins, Russell, Knight, Callaway, Cooper, Sudderth, Johnson House and Saunders voting for it, while Aldermen Couch and McLendon and Councilmen Baker and Inman opposed it.

CAMP AND EASON OPEN BOYS' STORE WITH EISEMAN'S

Hundreds of Atlanta youths Monday were presented with souvenirs at the housewarming which featured the opening of Camp & Eason, Inc., boys' clothing outfitters, operating in connection with Eiseman's Clothing store as the greater boys' department of that concern.

Roy Camp and Tyler Eason, owners and managers of the new department, have acquired the entire second floor of Eiseman's at 56-58 Peachtree street. Many parents who have depended on Messrs. Camp and Eason to outfit their boys for the past two score years Monday visited the store and looked over one of the most varied and complete stocks ever exhibited in Atlanta.

Large baskets of flowers, compliments of other large houses of Atlanta, added to other decorations, and a large corps of clerks was kept busy the entire day serving customers and welcoming friends of the new firm.

CADDY RULE AIDS IN SPEEDING UP CITY GOLF PLAY

Inauguration of the rule which requires all players on municipal golf links to employ caddies was of great assistance in speeding play at Piedmont and Key courses Sunday. It was stated Monday by L. COUNCIL WILL AID LABOR DAY FETE

Cooperating in every way possible with the Labor Day advisory committee and the Atlanta Federation of Trades in making Atlanta's Labor Day celebration the greatest in history, city council Monday voted to throw open all city parks and the Grant park cyclorama to the general public on that date.

Bathing pools, tennis courts and all other amusement facilities will be free on that day, and the golf courses will be the only department at which regular charges will be in effect.

Alderman W. B. Hartsfield, who introduced the paper, predicted that the celebration will be among the greatest civic events ever staged here, and urged council to assist in every way possible to make the program an unqualified success.

Tentative plans for the day's program will be made at a meeting of the advisory committee, composed of representatives of practically all civic organizations in the city, which is scheduled for 1 o'clock this afternoon at the Chamber of Commerce.

Forty organizations are expected to participate in the parade, which will include 10,000 people and innumerable floats. Six bands also will take part. Among organizations planning to contribute floats are electric workers, garment workers, labor league, allied printing trades, stage employees, barbers, trainmen, blacksmiths and others.

In addition to the monster parade, plans are being made for a free show at the auditorium, and elaborate exercises at Grant park.

ATLANTA TO INVITE LEGION IN 1928 PLANS FORMULATED

Atlanta will make a strong bid for the 1928 national convention of the American Legion, it was announced Monday following a meeting of a group of state legion officers who were guests of members of the Atlanta Convention bureau at the Ansley hotel.

The meeting was arranged by Fred Houser, of the convention bureau, who requested a number of officers of the legion throughout the state who were passing through the city en route to the state convention in Rome, to attend.

W. A. Simon, commander of the Argonne Post No. 1, presided at the meeting. Brief addresses were made by Fred Houser, R. S. Barker, Fred Newell, of the chamber of commerce; Mayor Pro Tem W. B. Hartsfield, E. J. Rowan, of Miami; J. R. Fitzpatrick, commander of the state legion; and Asa Warren Candler, who has attended most of the legion conventions and said that delegates to a national convention amounted to approximately 60,000.

COUNCIL INDORSES PROPOSAL TO HOLD BIG TOBACCO SHOW

Indorsement of a Southern Tobacco and allied exposition, to be staged here in 1926 by the grand lodge of the National Order of Pipe Smokers was voted by city council Monday afternoon.

Both houses of the legislature previously had gone on record as favoring the convention, which is expected to give wide advertisement to Georgia's entrance into the tobacco-raising world.

1 KILLED, 2 HURT AS AUTO WRECKS

Fairburn, Ga., August 17.—(Special.)—One person was killed and two others were hurt, while a fourth member of officials, en route to help in a search for an alleged negro murderer of Coweta county, escaped injury when an automobile in which they were rushing dogs to the scene of the killing plunged from the road on a curve about five miles from here at 10:30 o'clock tonight.

Felton Jones, county policeman of Fayette county, is the dead man. His partner and pal, Ed Dixon, former federal prohibition enforcement officer, and A. H. Stephens, who also was a member of the party, were injured. H. C. Adams, deputy sheriff of Fayette county, escaped unhurt. None of the injured are seriously hurt, doctors stated after examination. Dixon's back is hurt and Stephens suffers from cuts and bruises about the head.

Both Jones and Dixon won a wide reputation in the Langston case, which recently was tried, three men being sentenced for murdering James Langston, rural mail carrier, more than two years ago. The men are said to have been leaders in unraveling the murder mystery, which baffled officers for many months.

The car which figured in the wreck tonight was the same one in which Sheriff G. E. Jenkins, of Campbell county, rode to his death February 15, when he attempted to avoid crashing into another machine driven by a woman. The car was wrecked and was sold to Fayette county after being repaired.

Officers of Fayetteville tonight en route to the scene of a fight in which one negro is said to have killed another negro in a fight near Newnan, Sheriff Cosh, of Coweta county, wired for Fayette county dogs and reinforcements to aid in a hunt for the fugitive. Jones is survived by his widow, three sons, J. C. Jones, of Atlanta, and James and Gerrell Jones, and a daughter, Miss Alma Jones, all of Fayetteville.

Funeral services will be announced later.

A woman in the suburbs was chatting over the back fence with her next door neighbor. "We're going to be living in a better neighborhood soon," she said. "So are we," volunteered Mrs. Nextdoor confidently. "What? Are you moving, too?" "No, we're staying here."

SURPRISING REVUE AND CLEVER TEAM GREAT KEITH BILL

It is hard to pick the headline act on the Keith big-time vaudeville bill at the Forsyth this week. For it's a toss-up between a snappy, dashing revue with seven performers and a man and woman team act of only two. Both these acts are so good that either would do to head any man's vaudeville program, so let's divide the honors.

The revue, "The Topics," opens up a trifle slow. But it's only a minute or so until a girl comes out with a clog dance number. Then, in a minute or so more, there is the most unique black-face performer you ever listened to. Then another comedian with an uncontrollable wink. Then a dancing violinist. And dancers one after the other, getting faster and snappier all the time. And a final burst of unbelievable topspin. Incidentally, two mighty pretty girls give a generous display of epidermis.

The team is billed "Mack and Rosister." Mack is a clever comedian, with a splendid line of gags and a wonderful pair of dancing legs. Rosister is a girl as sweet to look upon as a ripe peach. And both are eminently good trousters. While most a rarer compliment than you think.

Carl Rosini and company present a clever magic act, though there isn't much new in their performance. The familiar tricks are performed smoothly and effectively, however.

The opening act is an artistic and graceful picture of posing and balancing by "The Youngers," a strong man and a shapely woman. There is an exceptional touch of grace and artistry to this act, which is intelligently staged, also.

Jack Ryan, a singer of songs with Hazel Webster at the piano, is the fifth act on the bill. Last night it seemed to this commentator, that he got more applause than he deserved, but then, all tastes are not alike.

Father News and Felix Cat pictures complete a mighty good bill.

SENSATION AT RIALTO IN "SULLIVAN REVUE"

Nellie Sullivan's revue and Carl La Felle's remarkable jazz orchestra took four Rialto theater crowds literally by storm Monday, arousing more enthusiasm in the audience than any theater production that has ever been presented in Atlanta. It marked a new departure in "class" for the Rialto theater.

The revue, which was a miniature section of the Nellie Sullivan revue which recently concluded a successful summer tour of Georgia and Florida, presented Miss Paula DuVoll in a jazz and toe dance and Miss Shirley Small in a scurf dance as the featured solo numbers. The ballet, composed of Misses Small, DuVoll, Margaret Clemons, Lucile Beagle and Frances Watson, opened the show in a graceful ballet and song number and closed in "Hotzy Totsy," a medley jazz act which kept the crowds at each performance applauding until minutes after the photoplay had begun.

LaFelle's orchestra, in five new jazz numbers, including "Sidealks of New York," "Collegian" and others, was more cordially received than any jazz orchestra ever presented on the stage at the theater before. The full orchestra of 10 pieces played in support of each of the dance numbers. "Face-makers" and Ricardo Cortez "In the Name of Love" were the photoplay features.

Ants' Civilization Superior.
L. R. Cleveland, a magazine writer, maintains that the ants have perfected a civilization superior to that of man's. They have solved the problem of food supply and the division of labor he solved only in a way man, as prophesied by man. Ants, especially the white ants, are found in all places where a man is able to live.

Record Crowd Attends Funeral Of Slain Youth

Rockingham, N. C., August 17.—

(AP)—Attended by what is said to have been the largest number of people ever seen at the funeral of a private citizen in Richmond county, burial services were held today for William W. Ormond, of Raleigh, N. C., who was shot and killed on the street here Saturday by W. B. Cole, wealthy textile manufacturer, who is held in jail here without bail for superior court October 5.

A love affair between Ormond and Cole's daughter, which aroused objections, is given as the reason for the tragedy. Business houses were closed for one hour during the obsequies and friends and relatives from many parts of the state were present at the local Methodist church, which lacked space for the large crowds. More than 300 automobiles were in the procession to the cemetery. It has been well known here that Ormond and Miss Elizabeth Cole, 24, had been sweethearts for a long time in recent months. Cole entered objection to the romance.

Now, at Whitfield Estates, there are miles and miles of broad paved boulevards, winding over the high slopes and down along the water's edge. The 18-hole Donald Ross golf course, one of the sportiest and most beautiful in all the South, will be open for play January 1. Work has begun on the handsome club house—to crown a pine-topped knoll. An extensive water system is being installed—with a 500,000 gallon concrete reservoir and a 125,000 gallon steel auxiliary tank—according to specifications of the South-eastern Underwriters' Association, so that residents may enjoy lowest insurance rates. Thousands of trees, shrubs and flowers are being planted—already the foliage is riotously beautiful.

In short, nothing is being overlooked and work will neither cease nor lag until the development is complete.

STONE-HARRIS BILL.

One of the most important house bills which now awaits the action of the senate is the measure providing for a consumption tax on gasoline.

This is known as house bill No. 755 and has been introduced by Representatives Bonnell Stone, of Union county, and Roy Harris, of Jefferson county.

The importance of this measure is generally recognized and the vote on the passage of this bill in the house last week attests its popularity, there being 138 for and only three against it.

There is an increasing tendency on the part of large consumers of motor gasoline in Georgia to place large quantities in storage and escape taxation. It is only fair that all gasoline used as motor fuel in Georgia should be subject to and pay the same tax.

The Stone-Harris bill provides for the same collection and distribution of gas tax for all such consumers, and when the gasoline is withdrawn from its original package within the state of Georgia it should be taxed on such withdrawals at the uniform rate as provided by law in this state.

If this wise measure is passed by the senate it is estimated that new revenue of from one-half to three-fourths of a million dollars will be produced for state purposes.

In order that motor fuel gasoline may not be confused with naphtha, which is used in industry as a solvent and not as a motor fuel, an amendment should exempt the naphtha from the special tax, which is for roads—when and when only such naphtha or solvent fluid is not used for motor fuel.

We have in mind the great plants in South Georgia that are engaged in the manufacture of turpentine and rosin from dead pine wood. It is a big industry, employs a large number of people and is of potential advantage involving a cash market to wastes, carrying aid to thousands of rural people.

The solvent naphtha is used as a solvent—that is, it is the base of a liquid solution in which the splintered dead wood is boiled for the purpose of extracting the resinous substance. Every time the boiling process is performed there is a waste of the fluid. Most of it is reclaimed and used again, but there is necessarily some waste by evaporation and otherwise.

Such an industry is in Brunswick—the Hercules Powder company.

It acquired its Brunswick plant in September, 1920. It has operated it at a loss every year since up to the present year. Owing to the higher level of prices on turpentine and rosin, particularly rosin, since April of this year, it is showing a profit for the first time since its purchase.

It is one of the two great industries of Brunswick. If it is forced to pay the proposed tax on its solvent, naphtha, it is probable that the industry will be lost to Brunswick and Georgia, as this one corporation uses around 700,000 gallons of this solvent each year.

It is only fair to the state and to all the users of gasoline as a motor fuel that every gallon of gasoline used in motors in Georgia shall be taxed alike—and for road construction specifically. It is not fair, however, to penalize industry by a high sales tax on a low-grade naphtha used as a solvent only in its manufacturing process. The state can amply protect itself by making the definition explicit.

ATLANTA'S "LABOR DAY."

It is commendable that the city officials, trade and civic organizations, business houses and citizens generally are cooperating toward making this year's "Labor Day" not only a notable event, in full recognition of the significance of the occasion, but a great industrial and trade celebration in recognition of a new day in the economic life of Georgia and the southeast.

Crops on the whole are good, and general prospects for fall and winter business in Atlanta and throughout the state were never more encouraging. There is a spirit of optimism based not alone upon a strengthening faith, but upon the pertinent fact that Georgia today is on a substantial development foundation, with every wind and tide most favorable. The situation in Atlanta, in the parlance of trade, is firm, with every indication pointing to a fall and winter of unusual activity and prosperity. The "Labor Day" celebration will be a fitting opening for fall business.

THE LIVING COSTS.

We publish a very sensible article on this page from R. V. Bergen, secretary of the Atlanta Retail Food Dealers' association, which analyzes the causes of the price spread between producer and consumer.

It is interesting, and for the technical facts therein, and for the discussion of the Atlanta food dealers' earnest efforts to serve the public to the public's best advantage, through healthful and scrupulous trading methods, deserves thoughtful reading by everyone.

The communication came in response to an editorial in The Constitution entitled "Is There Profit-feeding?" which was based upon communications referring to trade situations in several lines, and to a very urgent necessity in this country for revised marketing situations so that the spread between production and consumption may be reduced.

The Constitution is of the fixed opinion, as it said then and repeats, that the costs of living are no higher in Atlanta or in Georgia than in any other city or state, and has, indeed, suggested that the costs are lower in general, combining all necessities into a family's normal gross output. But it maintains that the costs of living all over America are getting entirely too high in keeping with existing national social and economic conditions.

Says Mr. Bergen: "We admit the cost of distribution of food is entirely too high and years of study of the practical features of distribution have convinced us of the reason for this cost. Popular belief is that there are too many distributors handling food before it reaches the consumer. This is absolutely true but not in the sense of the theorists and so-called economists. There are not too many branches of food distribution—we couldn't possibly get along with less—but there are too many people engaged in each branch," etc.

In other words, there is a gradual decrease of consumers to the dealer. Undoubtedly the spread, on the whole, occurs on the road somewhere and somehow between the producer and the retailer, but the point is, wherever it is, there should be a remedy in the interest of the great consuming public, the producer, and in the interest also of the fixed and legitimate retailer. When the public's interest is best served the interest of the retailer from whom the public buys is best served. That is common sense as well, as a definite principle of economics.

The retailers of Atlanta in every line of trade are as reliable, dependable and trustworthy, and strive as earnestly to serve the public as intelligently and well as those of any city in the United States. Indeed, Atlanta is an outstanding merchandising center, with retail merchants in every line second to none in this country.

"But that fact, as proud as we are of it, does not answer nor remedy the further general fact that the costs of living throughout America are increasing to a stage that does not seem to be justified by any economic law or condition.

The trouble, perhaps, is in marketing and distribution, and assuredly is general and by no means local. The first paragraph in a news dispatch from Washington in Monday's newspapers said:

"Wholesale prices reached their highest level in July since February, 1921, showing a gain of 1.6 per cent over June, the labor department reports in a survey."

Are wages and currency circulation keeping pace with these advances? That is the pertinent question.

We are unhesitatingly opposed to merchandise "peddlers," whether in foodstuffs, or what not. The best interests of the public should be so guarded through systematic and orderly distribution that they will have no place in our trade life.

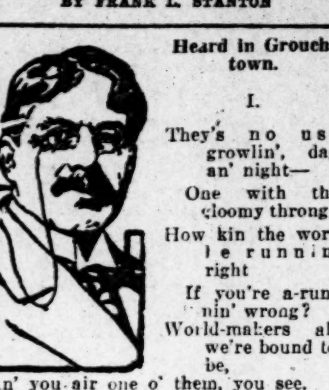

The article of Mr. Bergen is illuminating, rings true, and deserves careful thought.

The life in the Man is what the poet meant by "the life in the land." There have been no jokes at the expense of this legislature, because it really is a serious proposition.

With the prospect of a bountiful crop year, Georgia will have no occasion to go away from home to set the table and ring the dinner bell.

Poetry societies throughout the country, that claim to know what literature is, seem to be doing as well as could be expected under the circumstances.

Life in the Mountains.

(W. B. Townsend, in Dahlonega Nugget.)

It is also dry over in Banks county, as it is reported that two catfish were seen the other day, running down the river knocking up the dust with their tails.

Thursday morning of last week the lights being too dim for us to set type, we ran off fifteen hundred letterheads and ate breakfast by 5:15 o'clock. We were not going anywhere, but just getting ready for work.

Up till some years ago the boys and girls arose first to get breakfast and look after other matters, while the old folks slept. It is different in most of the homes now. The parents have to do this while the young folks take their rest.

We are informed the rattlesnakes killed by the hands on the mountain highway last week only numbered one-fourth of a dozen. But one made up what was lacking in number, as it was over four feet long, out inspecting the highway when run over by the car.

Mrs. Earl Ollman, of Gainesville, dropped in to sell us a new kind of a dictionary, but having gotten along so far with the use of plain, every-day words in the office, we decided to continue. If we make a mistake it does not hurt anything, because we do not expect to teach school or run for governor or to make speeches.

A Friend Like You.

I.

When God had made the colors For the sunset in the sky, And hung them over the western hills To soothe a weary eye, When He had made the velvet For the petals of the rose And breathed the fragrance in their hearts

Where golden glory glows: When He had made the purple For the sides of the hills, And made the silver rills; That are like singing rills; I know He sat and pondered Just to think what He could do To make a thing more lovely.

So He made a friend like you.

II.

After He had made the gold For every raffish fellow, He thought that if He made a rose 'Twould be more lovely still; And after He had made the dawn In pink and grayish mist, He thought the sun should sink to rest In gold and amethyst; And after He had made a field And run it through with rills He thought 'twould be more beautiful To make a range of hills; So earth was made, each final touch, The starlight and the dew, And then the crown He made to pierce it He made a friend like you!

LIGHTS OF NEW YORK

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

They possess the charm and vivacity of Parisiennes. They trip and dance gracefully. They can drive an auto mobile like a speed demon on a dirt track. They have a liquid capacity that is absolutely out of proportion to their size. They can swim, they can fight, they know yin-yang, they have inviolable every sphere of man's activities. They're preachers and teachers, ice deliverers, bootleggers and reporters, but there is one sphere they must stay out of.

Statistics just published will have it so. And that is the slaughter house. Employment there is reserved for men—because "women are not bloodthirsty" enough.

The superintendent of the Bronx Home for the Aged died suddenly today. He was 65. The funeral oration on the uncertainty of life will be delivered by the youngest inmate, who is 87. Twelve parades will be passed the century mark, will form the guard of honor at the interment.

Premier Mussolini's play is coming to Broadway. Politics? Well not for Benito. Its characters are actors, wandering troubadours, minnesingers and roving gypsies. The plot is very exciting so far as it goes, but the third and last act has not been written so far. Only Mussolini knows how the thing is going to end and maybe he won't tell.

To establish the social status of the younger set of Mott street and the Bowery a state charter has been taken out by the "Chinatown Four Hundred." The president of the incorporated society, one Jerry Sinischalk, predicts that there will come a time when people will be just as proud that their ancestors were born on the Bowery, as there were now smart settlers who claim their forebears landed here on the Mayflower.

Having had two of the best customers die during the past week (they were both actors), a Broadway press agent has offered his other clients an insurance plan that will protect him in the future.

As the task of the modern go-getting, live wire salesman appears to be Broadway: Brownbait the prospect. Baiter and haul him, morally.

Prices of Foodstuffs Discussed and Analyzed By Competent Authority

Editor Constitution: Your editorial in Friday morning's edition of The Constitution headed: "Is There Profit-feeding?" noted.

First, we question the exactness of the statement that a housewife purchased twenty-five apples from a farmer for twenty-five cents that were identical in size and quality to the six apples she purchased from a downtown store for twenty-five cents. If the statement is true in every case, then we contend that the case is so rare that it should not be accepted as an example of profit-feeding on the part of the retailer.

Atlanta housewives have learned not to purchase food by any description from the average peddler unless she is well acquainted with the reliability of that peddler. She has learned to distrust the average peddler because of the unscrupulousness of those who pose as farmers and sell inferior grades of fruits and vegetables, butter and chickens and eggs at prices that are practically the same, oftentimes higher, than that charged by the grocer.

Any bona fide farmer who peddles or attempts to peddle food to Atlanta housewives and he will unhesitatingly inform you that his biggest handicap is the feeling aroused against peddlers by the unscrupulous persons who posing as farmers, sell shoddy goods as being fresh from the country, and gives short weights and measures that are eventually discovered by the housewives. The bona fide farmer is afraid to bring his food products to Atlanta to sell to the consuming trade, except where he has an established business, and to prove this assertion, we challenge anyone to find twenty-five bona fide farmers peddling their own products to the housewives of Atlanta any day of any week.

These few farmers who do take chances and bring their goods to sell to the consuming public quickly find a very unprofitable market. The housewife, after hours of unsuccessful peddling from door to door, sells his load for any price so he can get away from the city. The retailer cannot always buy it at a price that is sufficient amount on hand for his needs or has it ordered and does not feel free to load himself with any more even though he might buy it at a little cheaper. The spot price for food is so high that the wholesaler and even with the greatest care the retailer knows a large portion of this food will be unusable within twenty-four hours.

The peddler can sell shoddy goods and adulterated goods, but he cannot legally guarantee everything he sells. If it isn't satisfactory, he must refund the money paid for it. Naturally, he must exercise greater care in selecting perishable foods than does the housewife.

Since the dark ages the consuming public has been led on by grandstanding politicians and others who attempted to play upon the feelings of a misinformed and gullible public by charging dealers in food with profiteering. We believe that The Constitution, with its many years' reputation for impartial fairness and conservatism, does not wish to be placed in such a category. In 1922 the much-talked of farm bloc demanded of the United States congress an investigation of the spread between producer and consumer. This investigation was made at great expense and the resulting report was a study in futility. Congress which was really antagonistic to the distributors. Yet, both retailers and wholesalers of food were given a clean bill of health. We refer to Report No. 408 of the Joint Congressional Committee on Agricultural Inquiry on "Marketing and Distribution" as made to the sixty-seventh congress, which shows the average retail grocer's profit to be only two per cent on each dollar taken in.

Before and since that report myriad investigations have been made by impartial individuals and agencies, including several housewives' leagues, and all of them have acquitted the retailers of all charges of profiteering. Certainly it is utterly unfair to cast charges of profiteering on all retail grocers without further proof than that elicited by the case of a lady making a good buy from a farmer who is Hammer him, fore and aft. Nag him. Crush him. Pester him. Bear down on him with your psychology till he wails and wabbles and his resistance curls up at the edges like an old shingle and he lies limp and pallid as a slice of hot cucumber on a boarding house dinner table.

Albert Watz had attended the big klan parade in Washington. He thought he'd top off the holiday by spending a day or so in New York. He motored in Friday. He got somewhere into the Harlem district and was stopped by a negro cop.

"Where is yo' lights?" demanded the negro. Watz admitted he had forgotten to turn them on. "Huh, don't you know this is violating de law of the United States? Boy, yo' can't go running wild disaway, I see got to arrest you. Still, Ah don't want to be hard on you. Lessee how you kin drive. I see got to give you a test."

Watz drove the negro around for nearly a half hour. "You is a little nervous in traffic, boy, but I think I kin O. K. you. Just say a fine of $8.15 drive and take this receipt den you report to de police station. Yo say you is a member of de klan. Well, ain't dat nice?" Watz reported at the station and found the receipt was a piece torn off a marriage license and the cop was a fake.

Regular Training Program Resumed by 122d Regiment

Resumption of the regular training program which was broken two weeks by the annual encampment of the regiment, marked the drill period Monday night of Atlanta's Own 122d Infantry.

The schedule calls for intensive work during the concluding months of this year, and of officers and men were given instructions Monday night not to deviate from the arranged program.

With the coming of fall and winter months it is expected that companies will be sent for short periods to the firing range at Fort McPherson.

Colonel Charles H. Cox stated recently that he wanted men to have as much firing experience as possible and indicated that companies would be assigned to firing duties at intervals during the fall.

All property checks have been made following return of the regiment from the encampment at Tybee Island and considerable attention will be paid for the next few weeks to having things in readiness for the annual inspection and the annual property check by regular army officials, later this year or early in the spring.

The regular weekly luncheon of officers will be held as usual at the Ansley hotel at noon Wednesday. Colonel Cox will preside and a number of matters of special interest to national guardsmen at this time will be taken up.

POLICE SEARCHING FOR ASSAILANT OF INN KEEPER

Police are continuing their search for the unidentified assailant of J. W. Dumas, proprietor of the Oak Grove Inn at Buckhead, who was attacked Saturday night just as he was closing his establishment and is now in danger of losing his left eye as the result of a blow that cut a cash about three inches long.

Mr. Dumas closed up the inn at 11:45 Saturday night and then turned out the lights in the grove. He stated that when he went to lock up his chicken house he remembers seeing a figure step from behind a tree and that he was knocked down. As he fell, he fired his pistol.

At this time members of his family ran out of the house and when they reached Mr. Dumas, an automobile was seen dashing out of the grove at high speed, they stated.

Cod Liver Oil is Sugar Coated Tablet For Puny Kids

Forget the nasty tasting, stomach upsetting cod liver oil and give the thin, puny, underdeveloped children McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets. If you want to give them a good appetite and put pounds of good, healthy flesh on their bones.

Doctors know all about them and so does Jacobs' Pharmaceutical Co., and all good pharmacists all over America, for they are in great demand, because they are not laggards but show results in a few days.

They are not expensive either—60 tablets—50 cents and children take them like candy.

A very sickly child, age 9, gained 12 pounds in seven months and is strong and healthy.

One skinny woman gained 9 pounds in 24 days.—(adv.)

Twins Are Guests At Unique Affair At Henry Grady

By H. C. HAMILTON.
Displaying a personal charm and graciousness which instantly warmed the hearts of those who met them, Daisy and Violet Hilton, San Antonio, Texas, Siamese twins, were honor guests Monday at a luncheon at the Henry Grady hotel.

This was only part of a welcome such as never before had been extended a vaudeville act in this city. The beautiful and most interesting girls opened Monday an engagement of six days at Loew's Grand theater.

Mostly those who were guests at the luncheon were newspapermen, invited by Tom James, manager of the Grand, to meet the girls and to talk with them, but there were a number of other persons also, including Mayor Walter A. Sims, who presented the girls with a key to the city and submitted to a battery of newspaper and movie cameras. He even shook a toe as he danced with one of the girls for the motion picture camera.

The luncheon was a pretty compliment to the girls, for everything was served in twin form. The entire was arranged in twin bits of pastry and the desert consisted of pastry in twin portions, one bearing upon it a daisy and the other a violet.

Several short speeches were made, in which the twins were warmly welcomed.

Daisy and Violet are most extraordinary in their movements. Joined almost back to back, they nevertheless are able to get about with surprising speed and find no difficulty in dancing. Their movements are in no sense clumsy. They move almost by instinct. In sitting they are almost, but not quite, side by side. They submitted smilingly to various poses and conversed brightly with anyone. Their personalities are most attractive.

Lambdin Kay, of The Journal staff, was toastmaster, introducing as speakers John T. Bouffoulet, of The Journal; James B. Nevin, of The Georgian; Mayor Sims; Paul Stevenson, of The Constitution, and Ernest Rogers, of The Journal.

SLAYER WILL FACE CHARGE OF MURDER

Joe Bradford, negro, indicted by Fulton county grand jury for the murder of his brother-in-law, Walter Willingham, will face a jury in Judge G. H. Howard's division of Fulton superior court today.

Bradford is alleged to have shot and killed Willingham as the latter interfered with Bradford and his wife in a quarrel on June 24. Willingham, it is said, pleaded with Bradford to stop beating the woman. Bradford is alleged to have cursed Willingham and then fired the fatal shot.

WELCOME VISITOR!

Atlanta extends to you the glad hand and hopes you will return early and often.

PRESIDENT

P. S.
Call at the Motor Club, 40 West Peachtree Street, for authentic Touring Information, maps, logs and charts.

This card will be presented to tourists by policemen on their arrival here. It entitles autoists to special parking courtesies. It is not good for residents of Atlanta and vicinity.

Atlanta's police, as well as members of the Motor club, are going to let the world, as represented by the automobile tourist, know that this city welcomes them and will take care of them. General orders to police have been issued by E. L. Jett, acting chief of police, instructing them to stop all tourists entering the city and present them with tags provided through action of the police committee of Wednesday night, August 12, 1925, and requested that body to have some cards printed welcoming tourists to Atlanta. This action was unanimously voted.

"These cards have been printed and will be given to each of the officers and will be handed to all tourists. They will entitle the driver to park his car anywhere he desires, except at fire hydrants, alleys or driveways. The idea of this card is to encourage tourists to come here and let them know that they will be taken care of while in Atlanta.

"I want all the officers, as soon as they see tourists entering the city, to stop their cars, and give them one of these cards; if the car is parked on the streets, give them a card and tell them we are glad to have them here, to stay as long as possible and come back as often as they can. In other words, be extremely kind and courteous to them and make them feel that they are welcome.

"E. L. JETT,
"Acting Chief Police."

House Approves Creation Of State Road Commission; Appropriation Is Reduced

Commission Empowered Under Bill To Dispose of Georgia Property in Tennessee.

The house Monday night passed a measure by Representatives Kempton, of Fulton, and Stark, of Whitfield, which provides for creation of the Western and Atlantic railroad commission, whose duty will be to treat with the city of Chattanooga for disposition of the state's railroad property in that city.

The commission would be composed of the governor, Paul B. Trammell, now chairman of the public service commission, three senators and six representatives, and C. Murphy Chandler, representing the state at large. An amendment to cut down the number of senators and representatives to one and two, respectively, was defeated. An amendment to cut the appropriation from $20,000 to $10,000, however, was adopted. These amendments were offered by Representatives Bloodworth, of Wilkinson, and Martin, of Troop.

Powers of Commission.
The measure is given authority under the measure to dispose of the state's property in Tennessee as appears to the best interests of the state. It was brought on the floor of the house that the state of Tennessee has the right to condemn the state's property, and that a bill to grant that right to the city of Chattanooga would be introduced in the next legislature of Tennessee.

Other appropriation measures passed by the house Monday night included the following: $4,764.95 for equipping the death chamber at the state penitentiary at Milledgeville; $8,000 for the Georgia Training School for Girls at Atlanta.

MANY SURPRISES GIVEN TO AUDIENCE IN "LOST WORLD"

One of the most amazing bits of photography and gripping drama to be produced on the silver sheet in many days is offered Atlanta at the Metropolitan theater for this week in the screening of "The Lost World." The art of photography never was brought more fully into play than in two acts of reproduction of pre-historic monsters which have been extinct for millions of years.

Surprise follows surprise in rapid succession as the story of the play unfolds in fights between gigantic alligators, appearance of pterodactyls, brontosaurs and other denizens of the pre-historic world, with a culmination in transportation of a huge brontosaurus to London and a reign of terror following its visit there.

The story as told in the book, as published only a short time ago in "The Constitution," is faithfully followed, with the exception of a very few points. The terrors of the pre-historic plateau, including the volcanic eruption, the clash with an ape-man, and the rescue of the exploring party by means of a rope ladder brought them by an intelligent little monkey are worked out in great detail.

The parts given to the actors and actresses in the drama are admirably executed, with special emphasis on the work of Wallace Beery, as Prof. Challenger, leader of the expedition, and Bessie Love as Paula White, daughter of an American explorer whom the party sought rescue, but whose bones they found instead.

There is a love story, of course, involving Paula White and Ed Malone, a love story, which, in fact, is made to provide finances for the explorers. Instead of culminating as expected, however, it brings together Paula and Ed instead of Ed and a sweetheart left behind in London.

SIAMESE SISTERS
PLAY TO CAPACITY
HOUSES AT LOEW'S

The famous Siamese twins, Daisy and Violet Hilton, opened their engagement in Atlanta Monday at Loew's Grand theater and almost instantaneously captured the approval of the crowds by their charm, natural grace and talents. The two pretty girls, born joined together at the waist, played to four of the biggest audiences that ever attended the Grand Monday and they scored big personal hits at each performance.

So much interest was shown in the appearance of these girls that a new big crowd filed out the exits into an area another big crowd was moving in from the front. Long lines of people stood in front of the theater waiting for an opportunity to enter.

In their sketch, which was written for them, the beautiful little twins are aided by Irwin Dash, who puts a lot of life into the turn. Mr. Dash explains that these girls, though joined together, suffer no pain, are perfectly happy, and enjoy romping and playing like any other 16-year-old girls.

After the twins are introduced by Mr. Dash they play several numbers on saxophones. They sing several songs and indulge in considerable conversation of a lighter nature with each other and with Mr. Dash. The girls then dance with two young men, a daughter, Marion and Mason Morris, who together with their sister, are famous triplets.

The dancing number astonished more than any other offering. The girls danced with their partners in perfect time, one dancing forward while the other danced backward. They were the guiding and dance all the latest novelty steps.

Chief interest of the crowd seemed to center on the beauty of the twins, of their attractive gowns, on their charming and graceful manner and their pretty curls which are much like those which won fame for Mary Pickford.

In support of the twins a pleasing bill of vaudeville is offered which includes a wide variety of entertainment. The Loew feature picture is "The Crackajacks" with Johnny Hines.

PROLOGUE SHARES HONORS AT HOWARD
There is a real picture at the Howard this week in "The Streets of Forgotten Men." With a good story to start with, a good cast, and an unusual genius in producing certain beautiful scenes filled with sadness, has made a picture from George Kibbe Turner's widely-read story that gets one's deepest feeling for his handicapped and begins to justify all that has been said about this Greater Movie Sensation.

Percy Marmont and Mary Brian are the stars, and they never have done anything better than "The Streets of Forgotten Men."

The prologue this week is one of color from start to finish, rollicking hand in hand with the snappiest of dancing, good singing and the very danciest music that Byron Warner and his Howard theater band have in their repertoire. The prologue as a whole is even better than last week's initial presentation. The high lights of the prologue this week is "Titina," sung by Virginia Futrelle, trelle, prima donna, and danced by the Howard girls and "Rainbows," sung by Miss Futrelle and danced by Miss Olive Hill, premiere dancer of the company, assisted by the Howard girls. Rehearsal and his accoutrements held over for a second week.

JUDGE CANDLER RAPS HIGHER CRITICISM ROW

Lavonia, Ga., August 17.—(Special.)—Popular Springs camp meeting in Franklin county Sunday observed its annual home-coming. For 90 years this camp meeting has been one of the most largely attended in this section of the country. The crowd was estimated at 5,000. Representatives from Gainesville, Commerce, Athens, Lavonia, Toccoa, Carnesville, Elberton, Canon and other points were present. Rev. C. D. Read is pastor in charge. At 10 o'clock, Rev. Horace S. Smith, presiding elder of the Elberton district, delivered a sermon on "The Home and the Importance of Christian Nurture to Our American Civilization." At 11 o'clock he was followed by Judge John S. Candler of Atlanta, chairman of the north Georgia conference board of education, in a discussion on "Where Is Thy Brother?" dealing with Christian duties of both churchmen and citizens. Judge Candler touched upon the modernist-fundamentalist controversy in several ringing passages.

"I am tired," asserted Judge Candler, "of hearing so much about higher criticism and so little about justification by faith from some of the present-day pulpits. What the world needs is not a debate over quibbling questions, but a message in the power of God's spirit as to the atonement and the blood of Jesus Christ that washes away all sin."

Judge Candler's message received a response that was most impressive. The Atlanta jurist is connected by family history with Franklin county, the ninth county to be organized in Georgia, through the fact that his great-grandfather was for two decades or more a judge in the courts of this section.

Judge Candler is to deliver an address before the American Legion in Rome during this week and in the near future before the State Association of Organized Sunday School classes in Louisiana and before the Missouri conference in October.

Stubborn sore on baby's ear Quickly responds to Resinol

N. S. Pittsburgh, Pa., May 10.—"I feel as though I must tell you of the good Resinol Ointment did for my baby. She had a very sore ear for about a year and I tried everything I heard of, but nothing seemed to help it. Then I heard of Resinol and tried it. It surely did the work, for in a couple of days you could scarcely tell that the ear had ever been sore. I'd never but without Resinol Ointment again." (Signed) Mrs. C. Bartosch, 1164 E. Ohio St.

MERCHANTS' WEEK BREAKS RECORDS

Registration Request.
The Atlanta Merchants and Manufacturers' association requests all visiting merchants to register at the offices on the second floor of the Chamber of Commerce building, soon after their arrival. Registration is absolutely necessary so that tickets for the various entertainments may be distributed.

Merchants' week is already breaking records. Inquiries made of a number of the city's leading wholesale concerns and manufacturers Monday afternoon brought out the information that more visiting merchants were in town for the first day of the annual week than on any previous "first day" in the history of the Atlanta Merchants and Manufacturers' association.

"Every train coming into Atlanta is bringing its quota of visiting retailers," said an officer of the association yesterday, "and almost every train going out of Atlanta is carrying goods to the stores of these merchants. For the visiting retailers are buying because they are getting better values right here in Atlanta than at any other market."

Tonight at the Forsyth theater the retailers of the southeast—who will be entertained by the "M. and M." at a big vaudeville show. Wednesday night the Piedmont Driving club will give an informal dinner, to be followed by a surprise midnight frolic. The city's best entertaining talent, as well as a number of professional artists, will appear at the merchants at this affair. J. K. Orr, president of the Merchants and Manufacturers' association, is to preside as toastmaster.

"We have been as busy as bees at headquarters registering the visitors," said Miss Gertrude Haines, secretary. "We want every merchant to be sure to call at the Chamber of Commerce building so that he will be qualified to share in the fare refunds and secure tickets for the various entertainments. I don't believe there is a doubt but that the week will hang up a new attendance record. The entire southeast has been canvassed extensively for weeks with a well-directed advertising campaign, embracing both newspaper and direct by mail, and the results are now coming to light."

Thursday night will be merchants' week night at the Howard theater and there are numerous other features planned by the different Atlanta houses for the benefit of their merchant guests. Indications are that purchases during the week will set a new high-water mark in the annals of Atlanta business.

Jury Takes Hand In Orleans War On Rum Traffic

New Orleans, August 17.—(AP)—As a federal grand jury met today to consider cases of alleged violations of the prohibition law in New Orleans and vicinity O. D. Jackson, state prohibition director, returned from Washington with a statement from government officials that the end is not yet. The Louisiana director also estimated that the liquor seized in a recent series of raids approximates a value of $1,250,000.

Mr. Jackson told of a conference with Roy B. Haynes, prohibition commissioner and Lincoln C. Andrews, assistant secretary of the treasury. Both expressed thorough satisfaction at the work performed by our department in New Orleans and vicinity. "We were told that there is to be no let-up in the liquor crusade until New Orleans and the gulf coast is completely dried up."

"Washington officials intend keeping enough men in this section to definitely carry on the work of crushing the liquor traffic."

It was suggested as the grand jury went about its business that some indictments may be returned in blank, an effort being forecast to connect persons heretofore unmentioned with the liquor seizures.

The first trials were expected to be called tomorrow before Federal Judge W. I. Grubb of the northern district of Alabama, presiding in the absence of Judge Charles R. Beattie. It was understood that the first case involved charges of conspiracy.

Noisy Welcome Given to Wales, In Buenos Aires

Buenos Aires, August 17.—(AP)—A noisy welcome greeted the Prince of Wales on his arrival here this afternoon for a state visit to Argentina.

As the guns of the Argentine warships boomed a salute and the whistles of scores of vessels in the harbor went into action, the prince, in the uniform of the Welsh guards, came ashore from the cruiser Curlew. He was met by President de Alvear and the members of his cabinet.

The thousands who had gathered to see the royal visitor gave him an ovation and seraphs circled over the city as he drove in a state carriage with the chief executive through the gaily decorated streets to the government house. Every point of vantage was occupied along the Calle Florida, the principal shopping street of the city, and there were shouts of welcome from hundreds of Britishers who had come from all parts of the republic to participate in the fortnight's festivities.

After a brief reception at the government house, Wales' second appearance on his way to his official residence assumed even greater proportions. The squads of mounted police were taxed to the utmost in handling the crowds, which were spread out for a mile along the Avenida de Mayo. Flowers were thrown from the balconies on the carriages as they passed along.

The weather was ideal, the gold-laced uniforms of the president's bodyguard and the multi-colored decorations making a brilliant display in the sunshine of a late winter day.

"How do you do, Willie? I come to stay at your house for a week, and I'm sure you can't even guess who I am." "I'll bet you're no relation of father's."—The Progressive Grocer.

ARMISTICE DECLARED IN FLORIDA LAND WAR

Tampa, Fla., August 17.—(AP)—The hatchet was buried in the Marco "lost land" fight today, but it may be unearthed again.

Settlers on Marco island, who have been restraining the more militant of their members in the disagreement with interests of Barron G. Collier, New York advertising man and Florida developer, over the possession of certain island lands, were apparently joined by the Collier agents in their efforts at peace, when members of the Collier faction at least concealed their arms in their patrol of the island.

Newspaper correspondents, who hastened to the little town, 60 miles below Fort Myers on the west coast border of the Everglades, following first publication of the details, found no guns in evidence, but both sides alike expressed the opinion that the armistice may be only temporary.

The full follows an announcement from the department of the interior that T. C. Havell, acting commissioner of public lands, with a federal engineer, will visit the island soon in an attempt to iron out the differences in an official way.

With the expected return of Governor John W. Martin to the state capital Wednesday, it is believed a delegation of the settlers who are asking in a petition for the removal of Sheriff W. R. Maynard and his deputies, agents of Collier will be given an appointment for a hearing.

Meantime, flags of both sides are furled, with an occasional Collier patrolman in sight within the fenced area.

A new glass of organic origin, which is said to permit the passage of ultra-violet rays, has been perfected by two Austrian scientists.

Pargues' new broadcasting station will be erected by Americans.

Let's Avoid a Power Shortage!

An Appeal to Every User of Electricity, Large and Small, to Conserve Power to the Utmost in Order That a Complete Shutdown of All Service May Be Prevented

THE COOPERATION of every electric customer of the Georgia Railway and Power Company is asked in order to avoid the possibility of a complete shut down of service.

Owing to the long-continued drought throughout the whole Southern territory and the consequent rapid and continuous depletion of the water on storage in the company's lakes, it is essential to conserve what water is left by using only what is necessary to meet the requirements of the public.

With only enough water left to meet normal demands for a period of about six weeks we feel that all customers will gladly cooperate with us in making the present supply last as long as possible. We believe that you will agree with us that it is far better to save water by using less electricity than to exhaust the supply in storage by disregarding the emergency.

Steam Plants Running Every Hour

Rainfall during the first seven months of this year was approximately one-third below normal. To offset this we have been and are now operating our steam stations continuously for twenty-four hours a day to their full capacity. We have bought from connecting companies all of the power they were capable of delivering, most of it being steam power purchased at rates in excess of that charged our customers for the same power.

Owing to the continued drought connecting companies are not now in position to sell power to us. The only power we can now buy during the day is a small amount which we have leased from the United States government at its Sheffield steam plant near Muscle Shoals and a small amount provided for in a long-time contract with the Tennessee Electric Power Company.

Your Help Is Asked

Since we are entering upon what is ordinarily the driest season of the year it becomes necessary to appeal for the most economical use of power possible.

We have asked authority of the Public Service Commission to make a slight reduction in street railway service during the emergency.

We are requesting the large industrial plants to operate nights, Saturday afternoons and Sundays and to cease operations on the week days in order that the water power may be available for other necessary uses. We find that we shall be able to buy steam power at night whereas it is not available during the day, due to other demands. If large industries will utilize this steam power at night instead of water power during the day, the saving in water will not only go far toward preventing a possible entire shut down but will also be a distinct service to the public generally.

We are requesting all municipalities now using electric power for pumping water during the day to do their pumping at night when steam power may be had.

We are requesting all customers in offices, homes and businesses to use just as little electricity as possible between the hours from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m.

Beyond Human Control

The situation of course is one that is beyond our control. It is not confined to North Georgia. The rivers in every state in the southeast are lower than at any other time on record.

We wish to thank those of our customers who already have voluntarily notified us in response to newspaper articles of their willingness to use only what electricity is necessary during the daylight hours.

Barrett Refuses Bankruptcy Plea Of Casket Firm

Augusta, Ga., August 17.—Judge William H. Barrett, in United States district court here this afternoon, refused to adjudge the South Atlantic Casket company a bankrupt. Judge Barrett's decision followed an all-day hearing on action brought by the Savannah branch of the Citizens & Southern bank seeking to prevent the adjudication in bankruptcy.

It was contended by Adams & Adams, of Savannah, attorneys for the bank, that their client holds a judgment amounting to nearly $400,000 against the casket company and Allen W. Jones, and charged fraudulent bookkeeping on the part of the casket company and Jones for the purpose of defrauding the bank and other creditors.

Charges were made by the bank that all essential records of the casket company have been destroyed, and that assets of the company have been fraudulently transferred to other interests of the Jones family, thus leaving the company to shoulder all liabilities without assets.

The bank's attorney said at the hearing that Allen W. Jones, reputed to have been fabulously wealthy, died without assets, all property having been transferred before his death to members of his family and to other concerns than the South Atlantic Casket company. Jones is said to have been interested in the South Atlantic Casket company, the United Land company and the Rosemary General Directors, Inc. It was claimed that his interests were transferred to the other two concerns and members of his family, throwing all liabilities on the casket company. The United Land company was among the alleged creditors, who attempted to throw the casket company in bankruptcy.

The Citizens and Southern claimed that members of Jones' family own or control the United Land company, and that the bank was seeking to prevent the bankruptcy because, it was claimed, the assets of the land company are rightfully the assets of the South Atlantic Casket company and should be held as such.

$10,000 DAMAGES SOUGHT IN PETITION

John L. Childers Monday filed suit for $10,000 damages in Fulton superior court against A. E. Herndon, negro proprietor of a barber shop on Peachtree street, for injuries alleged to have been received when Childers walked under an awning on the front of the barber shop which fell on his head.

Childers walked under the awning while an employee of Herndon is said to have lowered it. The handle which controlled the mechanism was turned loose causing the awning to fall, striking the head of Childers. The suit was filed by attorneys L. H. Foster and H. B. Cobb.

Atlanta Children at Play On Municipal Playgrounds

Photograph by J. T. Holloway, Staff Photographer.

The two scenes above show Atlanta children enjoying the sandbox and slide, two delightful features at Springvale Park playgrounds in Inman Park. This is one of the 24 public playgrounds throughout the city of Atlanta that are under the supervision of the park department.

BY MAINER LEE TOLER.
"Children are children—And children must play!" So said Miss Margaret Camp, supervisor of Atlanta's twenty-four public playgrounds. Miss Camp is enthusiastic over the benefits derived from the municipal playgrounds, by the thousands of Atlanta children who frolic and play from morning until night on these enticing sites. "Each playground has a trained supervisor," said Miss Camp, "and is equipped with every feature imaginable or conceivable for the pleasure of a child, such as sand boxes, swings, slides, jump ropes, wading pools, tennis courts, baseball and basketball supplies, etc. Soon after the breakfast hour each morning during the vacation season little tots of all ages come romping to these, their little treasure islands, where they can join the friends of their own little world in several hours of merriment, laughter and joyous pleasure. In the crisp, cool hours of the morning they enjoy the more active and strenuous games, while as the day progresses and the rays of a summer sun come nearer to earth, they are amused by the teaching of sewing, basket weaving, reading and playing of games less ardent. Only little fatigued bodies and sleepy eyes tear them away from their enchanting play spots at eventide.

Miss Camp urges parents to visit the playground situated nearest their residence to see where the children are taught honesty, fair play, courtesy, respect, unselfishness, health value, while at play. Miss Camp believes that on the playground, a teacher gains a keener insight into a child's personality or individuality than in the schoolroom, and is therefore able to instill the high ideals of character development in the young minds of our own precious children.

The Atlanta Safety Council has vigorously endorsed the playground movement as a prevention of casualties caused by children playing in the streets and an entertainment in the form of discipline. The playgrounds were established by the park department of the city of Atlanta and are under its direction.

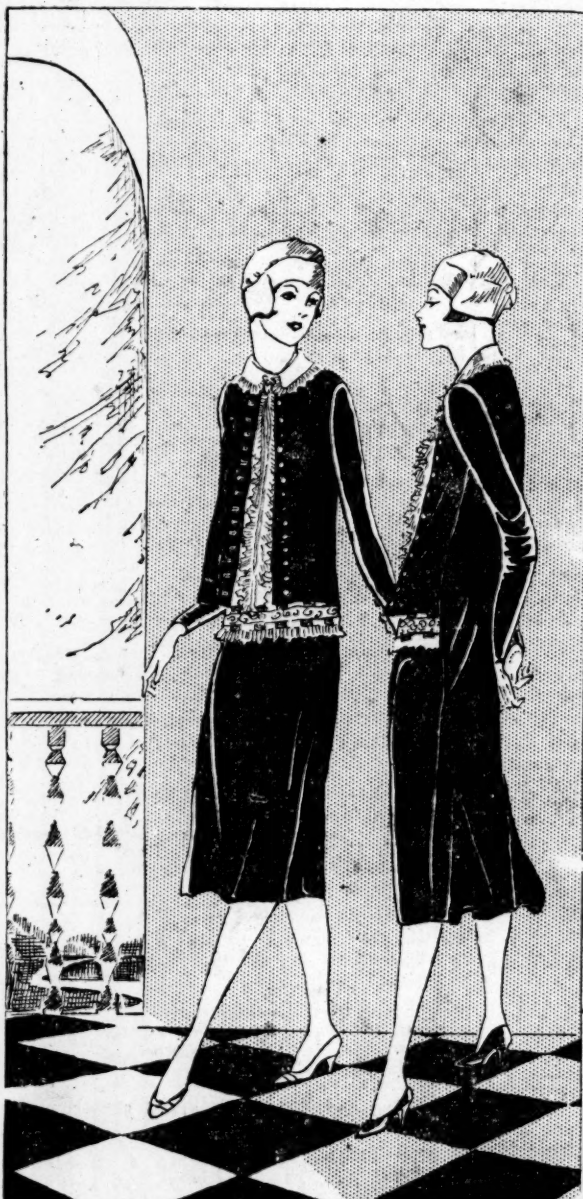

The playgrounds will close for this season August 22, with an elaborate program to be staged at Piedmont park or in the city auditorium with the hundreds of children who have availed themselves of the playgrounds taking part. The "Wedding of the Fairies" is the name of the program and its spectacular scenes featuring brilliant and artistic dances by fairies, dwarfs, nymphs, gnomes, jeweled butterflies, etc., will be a glorious and happy climax to the joyous hours spent by hosts of children on Atlanta's playgrounds during the summer of 1925.

THE PEARL HEADED PIN

BY ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

Colonel Hallett and his wife, Margaret, are discussing plans for refurnishing their London home, which is being remodeled. The conversation changes, and Mrs. Hallett is reminded of the past. Twenty years before she had been married to Henry Ledway, who died in a railroad wreck after being accused, along with his partner, John Selkirk, of murdering a business rival. Selkirk had been tried and sentenced to twenty years. Mrs. Hallett tells her husband the morning paper announces Selkirk's release from prison.

The first installment of this thrilling mystery story was published yesterday. Start reading it today.

INSTALLMENT II.
THESE MODERN GIRLS!

Colonel Hallett grunted. "Anyway, it's a nasty sort of moral tangle. We can't pretend to hate Selkirk. I'm all against humbug and self-deception, as you know, but—well, you can't get over murder, can you? He's outside the pale. And, anyway, I should not think he's likely to approach you for help."

"I'm not so sure," said Mrs. Hallett. "I have a sort of feeling that he'll come here and see me—very soon—a premonition."

"My dear, don't think me rude, but the last two premonitions you had didn't come off. And you know I don't like premonitions. I know some people have 'em, but—after all, it's a side of life that you and I can afford to do without. . . . By the way, since we have touched on this rather painful subject—I've always wanted to ask, but never dared to—Mr. March the Edward March who gave evidence at Selkirk's trial?"

"Yes. I was rather startled to find that he is. But, naturally, he has never referred to it, and so I've become unconscious of any awkwardness."

"Odd, our butting into him of all people on earth!"

"O, I don't know! There are very few building contractors who could have undertaken Cordway's house, and he is among the first flight. Now, that is odd!"

"What is my love?"

"That he should have risen so rapidly. When he appeared at the trial he seemed to be more or less living on his wits. Now he has fame, a position, and, I should say, very great wealth. Yet although he chooses to look sixty he can't be more than you are. I have an idea that you don't like him, George. I admit I don't altogether care for him myself. His lip gets on my nerves."

"He's ungenial," Colonel Hallett admitted. "I've thought he avoided me but, of course, that may have been because he's sensitive about the trial. Still, his manner when we do meet is—well, about this meeting of ours this afternoon, now. When I told him I couldn't possibly turn up at Cordway's House before 5:30, and he'd better see us both then, he seemed positively relieved and said it would be better if you could come at five so that he could do the artistic part of it with you and the practical part with me—and he'd do his best to avoid boring either of us. Unfriendly. Very different from that nephew of his—"

A swift gesture from his wife silenced him. There were voices and footsteps outside, then the door was flung open.

"Hello, dears!" cried a young voice. "Coming with us? Ray's got a box."

Mrs. Hallett smiled fondly. "I'm afraid we can't join. I have some shopping to do and then an appointment."

pointment at the house with Mr. March about the painting; and your father's joining us there after helping to receive some notability of other at the club. How are you, Ray?"

The tall, fair young man who had followed her daughter into the room returned her smile. He was not handsome, not ugly, and yet not in the least commonplace. He looked massive but moved with the light swiftness of a trained athlete; his eyes were eager, his mouth reticent and his smile was youth itself. His manner was engagingly free from embarrassment, for which Mrs. Hallett liked him all the more in that it revealed to the world at large his complete devotion to her daughter, Joan.

"I do wish you could come with us, Mrs. Hallett. Joan is flitting off to some low haunt or other after the matinee, and I feel in my bones that it's an assignation with one of my many and all equally to be detested rivals. Perhaps if you'd come, you could stop her."

"He's huffy, mumsie, because of my devotion to an aged man I met in one of my slums—quite forty if a day Ray calls it a platonic friendship, and says he doesn't believe in them. And whenever I go off on my own, he thinks I'm enjoying the society of the dearest one."

"This sudden out of the elderly is most encouraging," was Mrs. Hallett's opinion. "You'll be realizing one day that your father and I are eligible, and dining regally at home with us!"

"Doo! You two are utter infants and always will be. It's the disillusioned soul that fascinates me at the moment, not the eternal friskiness you two go in for."

"You look disillusioned," commented Colonel Hallett drily.

Unabashed by the general merriment, Joan twirled round to the mirror and studied herself as happily as her mother had done but a few moments earlier. The depths that had reflected Mrs. Hallett's arresting charm now gave back beauty of a different order—a beauty that tugged at the heartstrings. Joan was fair with a springlike fairness; beside her Ray Bristowe looked brown-skinned and her father almost lard. Her hair was the soft, faint yellow of ripening corn, her eyes an elusive violet, her skin so delicately white that the blue veins on her temples showed in exquisite tracery.

She had the appeal of eggshell porcelain, of cowhide face, of all the rare, mist-fine things that collectors worship; but behind it, in flagrant contrast, lay the impatient, exasperating personality of the twentieth century girl whom life has royally equipped.

Something of all this passed through Mrs. Hallett's mind as she watched the frank scrutiny, but all she said was, "I hope you're putting your fur coat on over that thin frock. Ray, make her turn up the collar—pin it up with something. It's a really bitter wind."

She put a hand over her own shoulder and groped for the pearl-headed pin that she had stuck into her sables. It was in her mind to pin her daughter into a sensible coat herself—the child needed a lot of looking after, in spite of her twenty years—but the pin was not easily found, and when her fingers did touch it they let it fall. While Bristowe hunted for it, Joan drifted from the mirror out into the hall and was heard to declare that a high collar stifled her.

"She would probably lose the pin, too," remarked Bristowe, retrieving it. "And I'm sure it's an heirloom. The setting—coming, Joan! How do your ancient admirers manage to keep on the hop, by the way? Your scheme of life allows them no breathing space, as far as I know it."

"I like that boy," said Mrs. Hallett contentedly, when the door had closed upon him. "He's just Joan's sort—I think."

"Doesn't Joan think so?"

"I really don't know. She won't be engaged to him, though I know he proposes to her once a week regularly. He told me so. He explained on the same occasion that he is not making his expenses at the bar yet. Mr. March allows him a thousand a year, however, with the clear intimation that he will have everything one day. I shall never forget the unblushing way in which Ray begged me to give our contract to his uncle's firm, pointing out that it was all good for him in the end! I nearly made me box his ears."

"H'm! I'll try to send him along a few briefs if Joan really is interested. Queer, these modern girls are—" He broke off as the butler entered the room. "What is it, Harcourt?"

"There's a Mr. Selkirk asking to see Mrs. Hallett, sir."

Mrs. Hallett looked at her husband and said:

"Show Mr. Selkirk in," she ordered.

Across Harcourt's retreating back, Colonel Hallett looked at his wife in silent protest.

"My life is so happy now with you and Joan," she whispered in answer to the look. "This poor man is the last link of the old chain of misery I want to put his life right if I can. Be decent to him, George."

"Mr. Selkirk, madam."

Lighter-Than-Air Squadron PLANS FOR LARGER DIRIGIBLES DRAWN In Navy Planned by Officials

New York, Aug. 17, (AP)—Creation of a lighter-than-air squadron of the United States navy within a short time was disclosed tonight by Captain Walter R. Gheradi, aviation aide to the secretary of the navy, and former commander of the aircraft squadrons of the scouting fleet.

Captain Gheradi said a high ranking flying officer will be selected to command the group and a complete tactical signals will be designed for its operation.

Captain Gheradi declared the navy is now in possession of plans for dirigibles considerably larger than the Los Angeles and comprising special offensive and defensive attributes.

The first line ships of the lighter-than-air squadron will at first be the military dirigible Shenandoah and the commercial or transport dirigible Los Angeles, with a lesser company of naval bags and balloons, all grouped under the command. To this organization all new dirigibles will be added and given places in the line as combatant or transport craft.

The new squadron will be added to the scouting fleet, it is thought.

To support the communications and ground organization of the new squadron, a line of mooring masts from Lakehurst to Hawaii is proposed and an aerial cable railway for construction of masts on the mainland and in Hawaii. The Hawaiian masts will be ready for reception of dirigibles this autumn.

A similar squadron is expected by naval leaders to be developed by the army with the first craft available for such a squadron now nearly completed at Akron, Ohio. Members of the army aviation corps already have been assigned to attend the naval dirigible school at Lakehurst, N. J., for training.

Arrangement for the new dirigibles already is in process of planning and will include rapid firing guns mounted in cabs, built into the structure of the ships with space enough for the small operating crews.

You Can't Lose On This System

Over at Monte Carlo everybody has his own system for playing the roulette wheel.

They're all good systems—until they lose! Only one in ten thousand ever "beats the game."

But the odds are all in your favor when you play The Constitution system of recovering lost valuables. It's making winners out of wise losers all the time.

Your lost watch or handbag can't stay lost long after you've told everybody in Atlanta that it's yours—unless some dishonest person found it. And that doesn't happen one time out of ten.

Here's a simple, winning system for you to follow the next time you lose anything—from a dog to a diamond ring.

BALLARD GLASSES

Those who already wear Ballard's Glasses know, and the general public is rapidly finding out, that the quality, service and style which enters into every pair of our glasses, repair work, adjustments of frames and courteous attention to each individual patient is not always found elsewhere. Why? Because every man in our employ is an expert in his particular work. We are exclusive opticians—no side lines of any kind. Ask the better oculists and physicians about our reliability, accuracy and high-class optical service.

Did you ever think how much good you do your neighbor when you build beautiful homes alongside of him—then turn it around—how much good your neighbor does you in a like manner. L. L. Turner has beautified University Drive with these Spanish Villas he has built there and they will help all his neighbors. We want you to take one of them and take Mr. Turner's place in being a good neighbor.

No paper in the South is known so well to farmers as The Tri-Weekly Constitution.
It was a great publication during the days of Henry W. Grady.

It was a Weekly in those days—but for a great many years it has been an every-other-day paper.

It has always wielded a great influence with Southern farmers.

For over half century it has advised with them—and they are now coming into their own.

The farm trade of the Southeast is well worth going after.

Pioneer Atlantan Recalls War Days On 70th Birthday

R. N. Fickett, Sr., president of Fickett Manufacturing company and pioneer Atlantan business man, was busy Monday receiving congratulations of hundreds of friends upon his seventieth birthday, which he spent quietly with the family at his home at 40 Gaston street.

Mr. Fickett has resided in Atlanta since shortly before the civil war and one of the interesting events of the struggles of the sixties is told by him regarding the battle in Atlanta on July 22, 1864. At the time Mr. Fickett's mother was seriously ill with typhoid fever and he was at home with her. The day after the battle, he said, he rode an old horse over the battlefield. He was near enough the battle to see General Hood and his staff directing the Confederate attack from the rear of an old barn on the Georgia railroad tracks.

"Just 51 years ago today," Mr. Fickett said, "I met Clark Howell's father, Captain Evan P. Howell. We remained firm friends afterward until his death. I've known Clark Howell since he was a tiny child. Clark Howell is now a newspaper reporter, and not to the credit of his father."

Mr. Fickett has been a subscriber of The Constitution from its first issue. "I subscribed for The Constitution," he said Monday, "with the first issue that came from the press and I don't think I've missed an issue since. It's a great paper, and I expect to take it as long as I live."

Mr. Fickett, despite his 70 years, is active and aggressive and handles his duties as head of the Fickett manufacturing company as he has for the past several years. He is widely known and for more than half a century has been a leader in all movements looking to the growth and development of Atlanta.

Mrs. Fickett is living and they have six children, 12 grandchildren and 2 great-grandchildren.

MAN TAKING PLACE OF SCOPES SPARED RELIGIOUS QUIZ

Nashville, Tenn., August 17.—Raleigh V. Reece, reporter on the Nashville Tennessean, selected to fill the place on the faculty of the Dayton, Tenn., high school made vacant when John T. Scopes failed of reelection, late tonight issued an emphatic denial that he had been subjected to any religious questionnaire before he was given the teaching position.

Reece issued the denial following receipt of news of a charge to this effect had been made by John Neal, of the counsel for Scopes in the evolution trial now pending in the courts.

"The statement regarding my religious views was what I made to a newspaper reporter, and not to the counsel for Scopes," he said.
